Tracks In the Snow.

(Copyright, 1907, by G. D. Daniels.)

One morning in November while rabbit hunting near my father's farm I came on a man's tracks in the snow. The tracks had been made in the night and led to an old barn. It was plain that the party who had made them knew of the old barn and had it in mind when he left the highway.

I went into the barn. Presently I heard the snore of a sleeping man, and a minute later I found him covered up in the hay. His face was exposed, and I saw his sandy hair, and then I knew who it was. Six months previously our nearest neighbor on the west had enlisted and gone to the front in the civil war. He was not much thought of as a man, being considered shiftless and without ambition. It was the large bounty that had induced him to enlist. If the man had no standing in the community, his wife had. She was an energetic little woman, far too good for such a man, and was universally respected. She lived quite alone after his enlistment, and the full crop, such as it was, was gathered for her by the neighbors. They had also seen that she had a store of winter fuel. I uncovered the man without awakening him and found that he was sure enough Dan Scott. I was about to arouse him when it struck me as a curious thing that he should have come to the old barn instead of going to his own house. I covered him up again and left the place and a quarter of an hour later was knocking on his door.

"Well, John, what is it?" asked the cheery little woman as I entered.

"How long since you have heard from Mr. Scott?" I queried in reply, hardly knowing how to get around to my subject.

"Why, I showed your mother the last letter. That was three weeks ago."

"Did he say anything about coming home?"

"Goodness, no! He couldn't get a furlough as soon as this if I was dying! Have you heard any news? Has there been another battle? Has Dan been killed?"

Then I told her of my discovery. She turned pale and shut her lips and trembled a bit. Not a word did she reply until she had got on her things to go out. Then she said:

"Come, John. We are going to the barn."

Not a word was spoken between us on the way. We found the husband still asleep, and as she stood and surveyed him she flushed with anger. Then she gave him a smart kick, and he opened his eyes and sat up.

"I've come home, Jennie," he said.

"Yes?"

"I was so homesick to see you that I just had to come. I believe I should have died if I hadn't come."

"Then you got a furlough?" she asked in a hard, metallic voice, her blue eyes looking right through him.

"A sort of a furlough—that is, a good many of the boys were coming home. You see, it's got so late that there won't be any more battles this fall, and there was no use hanging around the camp. I hope you ain't mad about it, Jennie."

"You came away without leave, did you?"

"There were others too."

"To come away without leave makes you a deserter. You will be hunted down and taken back. The papers will say you deserted. We shall be disgraced. Not a decent person for ten miles around will speak to us."

"Oh, come, now," protested Scott as he reached his feet and brushed away at the bay clinging to him. "You see, you don't understand. I was homesick, and it was no use for me to stay there when there was no fighting to be done. It was midnight when I got along here, and so I didn't go to the house. Let's go now. I'm hungry for breakfast."

"Hello, John! Glad to see you. Come over tonight, and I'll tell you some war stories. Why don't you kiss me, Jennie, and tell me you are glad to see me?"

Mrs. Scott was a gentle little woman, but her face grew as hard as steel. I saw her bite her lips until they were stained with blood. The look she gave the man was so full of contempt and disgust that he fairly writhed under it. She held him for a long minute and then reached out and took the shotgun away from him and began leaning up against a beam and saying never a word. She looked to see if the gun was loaded and then turned to her husband with:

"There is no house for deserters to go to. There is not a family in the state that would give one of them a breakfast. You cannot sit under the same roof with me. You are going back to the army."

"But, Jennie!"

"You are going now."

"Say, now, but you can't mean it!"

She stepped back and brought the gun to her shoulder, and on my life I believe she would have shot him dead in his tracks if he had not moved. He must have believed so, too, for after a few seconds he turned away and took his trail to the highway. We both stood and watched him, and he never looked back. Five minutes after he was out of sight the woman handed me back the gun and quietly said:

"John, keep this a secret for my sake."

"I will," I answered. And this is the first time it has been told to others. Both husband and wife are dead now. He went back to the army and in some way escaped the disgrace and punishment, and when he finally returned for good it was as a lieutenant and with an honorable record. I knew then both the son and even hinted at. It came and passed like a dream.

M. QUAD.

At the Spelling School.

By CAROLINE SPENCER.

(Copyright, 1907, by Mary McKeon.)

Burt Seymour, son of Farmer Seymour, had given a "sugaring off" party in the barn, and his invited guests numbered a dozen of the young men and girls of the neighborhood. Such parties are always given with the last run of maple sap and are simple af-airs. The guests all gather at the sugar bush, where the sweet sap has already been boiled down to thick sirup, and sent themselves on a log

while the sirup is boiled a little more and then served around on clean maple chips. There is snow yet left in the woods, and a dab of sirup dropped on the snow produces maple wax.

There is a general stickiness, a general

state of hilarity, and the girls go home with wet feet and the young men with wax on their chins.

In one sense this party referred to

was a great success. In another it was a calamity. A sewing machine agent had been stopping at Farmer Halliday's

for the last two weeks while he beat up the country. He happened to be a young man and a taking fellow, but there was no earthly reason for Burt

Seymour to be jealous of him. Eunice

Halliday and Burt had been engaged for three or four months, and while she was naturally flattered at the compliments paid to her by the agent, whose name was French, they didn't turn her head by any means. She saw from the first that Burt was inclined to be jealous, and she was therefore more than a little suspicious. Burt's jealousy, however, was not of the rank-kind. He took good care that the stranger shouldn't be invited to the sugar party, to which Eunice was duly assorted by the host, but cheek is a part of the stock in trade of agents of all sorts, and no one was greatly surprised when Mr. French showed up as cool as a snow bank and took the biggested clip in the forehead.

As old Aunt Martha used to say, all girls that amount to anything have a good deal of devilry in their nature. Believe me, they are not all as sweet and times when they like to hear. When Eunice saw, with all the others, that the coming of the agent annoyed her lover and that Mr. French was inclined to put himself out in another and more agreeable way to make things a success, she came as near flirting with him as she could and flashed her eyes at him. The harder

Burt scowled and the more she showed his vexation the more reckless she became. She didn't intend to go too far, but just far enough to punish him. He would be sullen and sulky going home, but she would make up with him before they reached the gate—that is, she thought it, would be that way. But she was mistaken.

Burt referred to the agent as a "snake,"

a "squirrel" and several other things,

and, although she only defended mildly, it was sufficient to keep his temper hot. He announced that he had been disappointed in her; that there was no such thing as loyalty known to her sex; that a few compliments from a "masher" were valued by her more than his enduring love, and when the gate was reached she announced that she wouldn't submit to be browbeaten,

and he flourished his arm in reply and exclaimed:

"Farewell, false girl! I have loved you as no man ever loved before, but you have let a fool part you. I may be sunstruck this summer or die of a broken heart or commit suicide, but it will not matter to you. You will have simply broken one more human heart—shattered the faith of another man in woman's integrity."

Of course Eunice went into the house

prepared to brave it out, and of course it wasn't fifteen minutes before her mother suspected that something had transpired and whisked her into the family bedroom to say:

"Now, then, has that Hattie Jones

been saying mean things about you again?"

"No, ma," replied the daughter as she burst into sobs.

By and by all the details were in the mother's possession. The girl did not deny that she had flirted a bit, but she had not really meant anything serious. She was deeply in love with Burt Seymour, and as she thought of his dying of sunstroke she cared for any other man, no matter how many sawing machines he could sell in a week,

it almost broke her heart.

"Well, now, stop crying while I talk to you," said the mother. "You should not have flirted, and Burt should not have made a fool of himself. He's gone away to chew the rag, as your cousin Ben puts it. He thinks he'll get a letter from you in a day or two asking his forgiveness. Then he'll take a week before coming around and condescending to make up. First and foremost, you are not to write him a line. Second and hindmost, he's got to come to you if there is any coming about it. Your father was just another such idiot when he was running after me, and I made him crawl. That's why I have always had the whip hand

of him."

"But you know how set Burt is in his ways," pleaded Eunice.

"But you can be just as set in yours."

"But suppose he's found dead with my photo on his broken heart?"

"Suppose our old dog should bark his tail off? You are going to do just as I say, and that ends it. I'm your mother, and I know something about men, and if I don't help you to bring that smart young man back within two weeks I'll never darn another pair of socks for your father."

One event invariably follows the other in the country. After the sugar party, about two weeks after, comes the last day of the district school, or the close of the term. Word goes out for ten miles around, and the 200 young and old who attend manage somehow

On the National Holiday.

THE THOUGHTS which fill one's mind on Independence Day, the history behind it, the ever shifting aspect of environment of which this anniversary is a part, makes it a subject never trite. A love that never grows old is patriotism. All other holidays enthuse and please. We are glad at their coming as we are rejoiced at the coming of good friends, but with the approach of the Fourth of July we feel the family affection, the intimate love which kindles the patriotic fires in our hearts and makes ever new that great Day of the American calendar. We are rich in history, not as in older countries perhaps, where centuries lie behind, but in the rich-quality—the quality of its founders—whose blood, brain and mettle have been diffused in its foundation and whose sentiments and spirit still re-echo in the heart of the American citizen of to-day. How prophetic were the words of these pioneers. The very problems they have anticipated have come to pass, and in the application of their advice have we mastered them.

The United States stands to-day a power among powers at peace with the world, perfecting her institutions, upbuilding her commerce and fame abroad. We only jeopardize this prestige through internal dissension. We only ruffle the serenity we have secured through the civic strife and social disruption which sometimes arises in the commonwealth. It is the duty of every American citizen to guard against this very evil. Our national pride should triumph above all else.

At Sword's Points.

GENERAL FUNSTON has given forth a statement in regard to San Francisco's conditions which has created a furore. In refusing to send the Federal troops to parade before "the unwhipped mob" he has brought much wrath down upon his military head, for the Fourth of July Committee took exception to his use of the term "unwhipped mob," a synecdoche for which the gentlemen have sought an explanation, but which when received was not evidently satisfactory.

The mistake lies in General Funston's frankness. The term he used was very applicable, but it would have been far more politic to have spoken or used it in the presence of his intimates only and never to have put it in black and white. The fling will not better conditions. General Funston could "do things" with his sword but he will not find the pen very mighty in this particular instance. He has merely succeeded in wounding the feelings of the committeemen. The latter are foolish to be disturbed, for it is a fact which they must admit that mob violence has not been controlled, let alone conquered, in San Francisco these past few weeks. The mob is, therefore, unwhipped. General Funston and his troops could well take care of themselves, but it is not a pleasant feeling for guests to gird on their arsenal when they by virtue of their status have a right to protection and courtesy which should, but cannot, be guaranteed.

General Funston probably feels the absurdity of troops as mere form and ceremonial when as a matter of fact they should be there enforcing the law and order that the civil authorities cannot guarantee. The mob is the minority in San Francisco but the peace-loving majority deprived of the master hand of Mayor and other necessary officials are powerless. Public opinion is in control there to-day, otherwise the city would be in far more a chaotic state. This is a strong testimonial to the upright spirit which characterizes the population of our great metropolis. It is the redeeming, optimistic feature of the whole situation. The undercurrent is normal though the surface seems turbid.

It is ANNOUNCED that women don overalls to climb Mt. Hood. Pants usually go along with mountain climbing.

An Epidemic of Divorce.

In addition to the two actions for divorce commenced in the Superior Court of this county last Monday, mention of which is made elsewhere in these columns, five more actions were commenced Thursday, the plaintiffs being four women and one lone man. Lawyer Tom Butts, of Santa Rosa, is the attorney for this latter bunch which are as follows:

Amanda Rose vs. George Rose, residents of Healdsburg; failure to provide.

May Summer vs. D. Gilbert Summer, residents of Santa Rosa; cruelty.

Sibyl Kimble vs. Thomas Kimble, residents of Santa Rosa; desertion and failure to provide.

Annie E. Davis vs. E. H. Clair Davis, residents of Forestville; desertion. James E. Bidwell vs. Anna Bidwell, residents of Alexander Valley; cruelty.

Fourth of July Ball.

The grand ball to be given at Union Hall on the evening of July 4th by the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club will be the feature of the celebration on the Fourth. The hall will be elaborately decorated by the ladies and with its many electric lights and handsomely gowned women will present an animated appearance. It is anticipated the ball will be one of the grandest ever held in this valley. Mine host Koenig, of the Union Hotel, will serve the supper, which is a sufficient guarantee that the needs of the inner man will be more than satisfied.

COUNTY NEWS ITEMS.

The directors of the Santa Rosa Bank have decided to place a clock on their new four-story building when it is completed. The clock will be a great public convenience as since the court house clock disappeared there is no public time piece easily seen from the streets.

Jeff Fine, a pioneer stockman of Petaluma, passed away on Monday morning at the home of W. Whitlatch, in that city, after an illness of a few months. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Rachel Smith, Mrs. Hannah Rodgers and Mrs. Hattie Carpenter, of San Jose, and Sue Douglas, of Oaklahoma. The funeral occurred Thursday.

Judge Thomas Denny has made an order denying the motion for a new trial in the suit of Sampson B. Wright against the County of Sonoma to recover several thousand dollars for water used by the county for road sprinkling purposes. The litigation has been before the courts for some time on various points. The details of the litigation are well known to the public. Attorney Thomas J. Butts represents Mr. Wright.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment or injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be had when suitable medicines are kept at hand. County Clerk Fred L. Wright has placed us under obligations this week for a copy of the official returns of the election held last November. The returns as compiled and tabulated reflects credit on Mr. Wright and his efficient corps of deputies.

HUNTERS' LICENSE BADGES ARRIVE.

County Clerk Wright Can Now Issue Them to Sportsmen.

County Clerk Fred L. Wright has secured from the California Game and Fish Commission a consignment of aluminum badges for hunters and fishermen, which, under the new game law, must be secured in order to comply with the statutes regulating hunting and fishing in this State, which goes into effect July 1st.

Bona fide residents of California and citizens of California will have to pay a license of a dollar per year. Non-residents of the State and citizens of the United States will have to part with ten dollars while non-citizens must hand over twenty-five dollars for the privilege of hunting in California.

County Clerk Wright will send to every Postmaster in the county blank applications so that those desiring licenses can fill out one of the blanks, secure a postal order and forward application and coin either to the County Clerk's office or else direct to the Fish Commission in San Francisco, and the license will be forwarded. Applications can also be secured at the County Clerk's office or from the Fish Commissioners.

Parties desiring badges in this valley can secure these blank applications from either of the following Postmasters: J. M. Cheney, Sonoma; Mont. Akers, Schellville; M. F. Mullen, El Verano; Theodor Richards, Agua Caliente and Chas. J. Poppe, Glen Ellen.

Sonoma Valley's Largest Oak Tree.

There is a live oak tree on Green Oak Farm, on the Napa road, five miles east of this place, that measures at the base twenty feet, eleven inches in circumference. This is believed to be the largest oak tree in Sonoma county. Green Oak Farm was formerly owned by the late T. S. Glaister but is now the property of F. Picetti, who purchased the magnificent ranch from the Glaister heirs a couple of years ago.

Want to Sell Your Property?

Gratice & Severy, real estate agents and house brokers, whose place of business is at this office, will make a specialty of disposing of property quick. List with them and note the result.

J. U. Graeff, a well-known business man of Sebastopol was in town several days this week looking into the demand for shooks in this valley.

Prunes are Prunes This Year.

It may be interesting news to those of our orchardists who dug up their prune orchards a few years ago, because prunes were then a drug on the market, to learn that the product is now commanding $40 per ton on the trees. The latest reported prune deal comes from Vacaville, where J. C. Uhl has purchased Charles Richter's crop of prunes, the price being $40 per ton. The buyer picks, prepares and markets the fruit and the price is a net one to the seller.

That Condemnation Suit.

The condemnation suit brought by Sonoma county against the Yulupa Land and Water Company of which Mr. L. L. Lewis of this place is the principal stockholder, came up before Judge Seawell last Tuesday for a hearing. The suit was brought by the county to secure a strip of land for road purposes over the premises of the defendant company, who claim the compensation offered is inadequate to offset the damage to its property.

A large number of witnesses from this section testified pro and con.

Mr. L. L. Lewis, the President of the company and owner of "Fern Hill," a portion of which is required for the construction of the new road, testified that he would not suffer the despoliation of Fern Hill for $1,000 an acre as it would, he claims, destroy its natural beauty.

On Wednesday, former Supervisor P. H. Thompson took the witness stand and gave it as his opinion that the land was worth from fifteen to fifty dollars an acre. It was also mentioned, however, that it was hard to gauge the value of the land as no sales had been made for some time in the vicinity that could be used as a criterion.

The witnesses called on Wednesday included P. H. Thompson, William Wyatt, E. H. Cliff, E. O. Gates, W. H. Bridges, A. D. Graciam, T. J. Leverone, Blair Hart, J. O'Brien, Miss Biggins and F. E. Dowd.

At the conclusion of the testimony the case was submitted without argument on either side and Judge Seawell announced that he would take the matter under advisement and said that he would hand down his decision in a few days.

District Attorney Clarence Lea and A. B. Ware represent the county in the suit, both of whom were down here Saturday looking over the ground.

TWO SONOMA VALLEY WOMEN WANT FREEDOM.

Apply to Superior Court to Have Marriage Bond Severed—Desertion and Neglect the Cause.

Two suits for divorce were filed in the Superior Court of this county Monday by two well-known Sonoma women.

Mrs. Rebecca Palmer, residing in the western part of town, through her attorney, Robert A. Poppe, asks the court to sever the bonds of matrimony existing between her and her husband, Jasper C. Palmer, on the grounds of desertion. The plaintiff makes sensational charges against her aged and erring spouse and wants no more of him.

Mrs. Katie E. Fussell also applied to the Superior Court to have the marital tie severed, alleging that her husband, D. A. Fussell, neglected her and failed to provide for the family. The parties to this suit are old residents of this place and have reared a large family of children. This suit comes as a surprise to their friends here, who had no idea of a domestic rupture in the family. The attorney for the plaintiff in this case is Wm. F. Cowan of Santa Rosa.

Performed Capital Operation.

On Saturday last, in order to save the life of the patient, Dr. F. Leix, assisted by Dr. Arthur, performed a capital operation upon Mrs. Schmidt, wife of J. Schmidt of 629 Shotwell street, San Francisco. Mrs. Schmidt came here last week for the benefit of her health, taking apartments at Sonoma Grove. After being here a few days her condition became alarming and she was suffering excruciating pain. On Friday of last week Dr. Leix was called to attend the suffering woman and found her condition so alarming that an immediate operation was decided upon. Mrs. Schmidt was brought to the Leix sanitarium here and underwent a successful operation on Saturday and is now considered out of danger.

Mr. Schmidt, who is a stranger here, called at this office and was profuse in his gratitude for the kindly manner in which his wife was treated by the Sonoma Grove people during her brief sickness there. He stated that Miss Mandalay Boyd, and in fact all the inmates of the resort did all in their power to assist his bed-stricken wife whose life, he asserts, Dr. Leix undoubtedly saved through his surgical skill.

An Old Sonoma Landmark Disappears.

The demolition of the old college building on Broadway has been completed by the contractors and this familiar landmark is now a thing of the past. With its mansard roof and solid, substantial appearance, it was for years one of the most commanding and showy buildings in the Sonoma Valley. It was built over forty years ago for educational purposes and for years was conducted by Rev. Mr. Cunningham and other educators as a private seminary. For a time the college flourished but eventually was abandoned and subsequently used as a dwelling by the late Dr. F. M. McTaggart and others.

Ten years ago the property was purchased by the High School Trustees for a mere song, and up to the time of the earthquake, a year ago last April, was used for high school purposes. After the quake it was found to be badly shattered and unsafe for habitation and was subsequently condemned.

In order to make room for a new High School building, to be erected on the site of the old structure by contractor A. E. Warriner, the High School Board ordered its demolition a few weeks ago, and the once stately walls of the imposing structure are now a mass of debris which is being carted around town and used for filling up the low places on private property on Broadway and other streets.

Mr. Mosner will commence the erection of a frame building on his purchase as soon as lumber can be got on the ground. The size of the building will be 25x50. He has sold out his property in El Verano and will conduct his bicycle business wholly in this place.

GLEN ELLEN By Aurora.

Mrs. Augusta Berkhart died at her home, one mile from this place, Tuesday morning, from an internal tumor. Although a sufferer for several years it was only recently the true cause of her sickness was known.

The Glen Ellen Grange and the Dunbar Improvement Club have been invited by F. Clewe, the chairman of the Sonoma Fourth of July Parade Committee, to join in. The matter will be brought up in meeting.

A large wild cat was seen in a field, near the Santa Rosa road, a few days ago, by a young man who was rabbit hunting. The young fellows who go out after game should be prepared to draw a bead on this varment.

Glen Ellen Grange, P. of H., gave a picnic last Saturday in O'Donnell's Grove. A literary program of merit was rendered and at noon there was a substantial spread beneath the shade trees. Mrs. Ida Wagner, George Cobb and Mrs. Harry Weise were the committee of arrangements.

Robert P. Hill, who was in town from his home a few days ago, told of the condition of the contents of the tin box found in the corner stone of the High School building. He is one of the trustees of the school. He said the box was taken out a few days ago and in it were some letters, a hymn book, such as they used in olden times, and a small testament. The gilded figures on the covers of the hymn book were easily discernable. The leaves had turned to a mass of black pulp, as had the testament.

From another source I have the information that the building was erected by a company of moneyed men for a seminary of a Protestant denomination and from what I could find out, from one of our oldest residents, its walls were erected over forty years ago.

GLEN ELLEN, June 29th, 1907.

The Lemoine Winery to be Rebuilt.

Frank Lemoine, of Glen Ellen, will rebuild his winery, which was destroyed by fire last winter. Mr. Lemoine is one of the most enterprising vineyardists in Sonoma Valley and it takes something more than a fire to put him out of commission. He has now been burned down twice with heavy loss, and purposes to make his new cellar as near fireproof as possible.

A WHISTLER STORY.

The Eagle That Was Made to Pose as a Fighting Cock.

Appropos of something Whistler once told a cockfight story so vividly that only a man with a sailor's instinct could tell it as well, mimic it so keenly and enjoy it so thoroughly. It was a story of a strange species of the American cock, pictured to the smallest detail so beautifully that one forgot that it was a story.

Some American sailors were at a cockfight in a seaport town in England when one of them remarked to the owner of the champion: "We have got an American cock on board that can whip any bird here." "Go fetch 'im on," said the champion. "Chuck 'im in and see. If 'e licks one bird we 'ave plenty more to throw in that can lick any blawsted Hamerican bird you can fetch 'ere."

"All right. We'll bring one," said the sailors. When they got aboard they rigged up an American eagle. After their own manner, they painted, trimmed, oiled and reeled fore and aft, transforming the eagle to a cock. When ready they went ashore to pit their new American gamecock against all England.

At the pit the sailors chuckled in their cock, which looked around for their surprises as he backed close to the wall.

"Now, bring on your birds!" yelled the sailors. A strutting cock was thrown into the pit and was another surprise to the poor dismantled eagle. He backed up closer and closer to the wall, wondering what would happen next. The cock walked three times majestically around the circle, cutting at his strange opponent, the eagle piteously abashed and bedrabbled, crouching lower and lower and looking around and above him for an explanation of what it all meant, while the crowd were yelling madly for the English fighter. The eagle made himself smaller and smaller, but at last, finding that he could get back no further and thinking that something was expected of him, and as the cock dashed at him again, stretched out his long claws and took his opponent by the neck.

Here Whistler ended with an imitation by means of what the eagle did. He stretched out his arm, showed his hand like a claw, which by this time looked like a real one, drew it to his mouth and with one bite pulled off the head as he thought an eagle might do it. Then he looked blandly about the room, as the eagle had done, at the astonished crowd and said, "Now bring on your other birds."—Otto Bacher in Century.

TOWNS WITH TROUBLES.

London's trouble is her fog. Tokyo's trouble is earthquakes. In her worst 200,000 residents were killed. The mistral is the trouble of Marseilles, an east wind that increases the city's death rate 50 per cent.

Calcutta's trouble is cholera, and the bubonic plague is the trouble of Bombay. Each city pays for her trouble an annual tribute of 9,000 souls.

Bagdad's trouble is the "Bagdad button," a sore that attacks practically every resident and visitor, leaving a button shaped permanent scar. Madrid's trouble is the solano, a summer wind from the southeast. It is exceedingly hot and is accompanied by blinding, choking clouds of dust, so that notwithstanding a temperature of 105 or 110 degrees all windows must be closed.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Science of Chemistry. Chemistry did not become a science—in other words, chemistry proper did not exist—until the seventeenth century, and it was as late as the middle of the eighteenth century before it began to amount to much. The old alchemy undoubtedly contained the germs, or at least the possibilities, of the present day chemistry, but beyond this the relationship between the modern science and the ancient delusion is slight indeed. Still, it cannot be denied that it was in the foolish search for the "Philosopher's Stone" and the "Elixir of Life" that men first lit upon the discoveries which were destined to develop into the great science of today.—New York American.

The Sarcastic Caddy. The London bobby is notorious for overgrown feet and hands. Likewise the London caddy is generally accredited with never being at a loss for a reply. One day a bobby lifted up his hand majestically to halt a caddy, but the latter crowded his horse ahead. "Didn't you see me raise my 'and'?" demanded the bobby. "I did see the sky darken a moment, but my 'orse was shy'n' at your feet," retorted the caddy as he whipped up and went on.—London Graphic.

The Danes and the Raven. Perhaps the Danes selected the raven for their standard out of feelings of gratitude, for before the invention of the mariner's compass they must have found him extremely useful. The only method of determining whether land was near was to let loose a raven. If the bird saw land he sailed away forever; if he did not, he returned to the ship.—London Chronicle.

Equally Culpable. "I can see for myself that I never have been in an engine to get another woman's cook away from her." "Neither have I, but I must confess that once or twice I have tried to work our cook off on some of my neighbors."

Shut Him Off. "What are you taking for your cold?" "Nothing." "Nothing? But, my dear fellow—" "Nothing, I say, not even advice. Fine day, isn't it?"—Illustrated Bits.

Wasn't Sure. "Remember," said the lawyer, "you have undertaken to tell nothing but the truth." "I'll do my best," answered the expert witness, "but I won't know how far I have succeeded until I'm through with the cross examination."—Washington Star.

The Doubt. Borrowers—By the way, Knox, did I leave my umbrella at your office yesterday? Knox—You left an umbrella, but I don't know whether it was yours or not.—Exchange.

Thunder in September indicates a good crop of grain and fruit for the next year.—Old Proverb.

Don't!!!

Don't let your child suffer with that cough when you can cure it with Ballard's Hair Tonic. Quinine Tonic, which is a wonderful remedy for the prevention of baldness. Mr. Galliano has had many years experience under a first-class physician in Europe. A great number of cases of baldness are caused by indigestion, and not as is presumed, by a disease of the scalp. It is not claimed that Quinine Tonic will grow hair on a bald head, as a number of fake tonics are advertised to do, but it is claimed and guaranteed that Quinine Tonic will stop the hair from falling out, and if used twice a week will clear the head from dandruff which will not return as long as the Tonic is used. Quinine Tonic is composed of the five following articles: Pure Alcohol, Quinine, Sulphur, Glycerine and Tumeric. If the Tonic is used and not found as represented, Galliano will refund the money. The Quinine Tonic will also save the trouble of shampooing the hair. This Tonic is for sale at both drug stores in Sonoma.

Galliano's Quinine Hair Tonic.

Joe Galliano, at First Street East, Pinelli building, has introduced into Sonoma a hair tonic called Quinine Tonic, which is a wonderful remedy for the prevention of baldness. Mr. Galliano has had many years experience under a first-class physician in Europe. A great number of cases of baldness are caused by indigestion, and not as is presumed, by a disease of the scalp. It is not claimed that Quinine Tonic will grow hair on a bald head, as a number of fake tonics are advertised to do, but it is claimed and guaranteed that Quinine Tonic will stop the hair from falling out, and if used twice a week will clear the head from dandruff which will not return as long as the Tonic is used. ANCIENT ARMIES.

Ten thousand horse and 100,000 foot fell on the fatal field of Issus. The army of Artaxerxes before the battle of Cunaxa amounted to about 1,200,000.

An army of Cambyses, 50,000 strong, was buried in the desert sands of Africa by a south wind.

A short time after the taking of Babylon the forces of Cyrus consisted of 600,000 foot, 120,000 horse and 2,000 chariots armed with scythes.

Ninus, the Assyrian king, about 230 B. C., led against the Bactrians his army, consisting of 1,700,000 foot soldiers, 200,000 horse and 10,000 chariots armed with scythes.

When Xerxes arrived at Thermopylae his land and sea forces amounted to 2,641,610, exclusive of servants, eunuchs, women, sutlers, etc., in all numbering 5,283,220. So say Herodotus, Plutarch and Isocrates.

Why Paper Cuts.

Have you ever cut yourself with a piece of paper? The edge of a piece of glazed paper looks much like that of a knife under the microscope. Of course the little teeth have not the strength of steel, but if the edge of the paper is drawn swiftly over the finger without much pressure that peculiar property of matter called inertia comes into play, and the tender teeth will cut the flesh before they are broken. The same property it is which allows a candle to be shot through a one inch plank or permits a bullet to pass through a pane of glass without shattering it, leaving only a clean, round hole.—C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas.

Lincoln and a Suit of Clothes.

On one occasion a judge was ill and, being unable to sit in a case, delegated Lincoln to hear the matter. The account of a guardian was in question. He had paid $28 for a suit of clothes for his ward and justified it on the ground that it was a necessary expense. Lincoln held against the guardian on the ground that it was an extravagant expenditure and in passing on the case stated that he had never in his life owned a suit of clothes that cost $28.

The Lyre Bird.

The largest and handsomest of all the song birds is the lyre bird. Its home is in Australia, where its song is heard morning and evening. It is heard oftener in winter than in summer. The chief beauty of the lyre bird is in the plumage of its tail, which is elegant and in the form of an ancient lyre. While singing the lyre bird spreads its tail over its head like a peacock and droops its wings to the ground. This bird is not only a fine songster, but can imitate the songs of all birds. One living near a wool sawyer's hut even imitated the sound of the filing of saws. The crowing of cocks, the cackling of hens, the barking of dogs and the meowing of cats are within its range. Its own song is also different from that of other birds, being a louder and fuller tone.

Leprosy. Leprosy is an exclusively human disease. It is not inoculable to animals. It is never of spontaneous origin, but is invariably derived from the lesions or secretions of a person similarly diseased. Its development in a country previously exempt from the disease may always be traced to its introduction in the person of a leper from an infected center. We know nothing definitely of the mode of infection or the channels of entrance through which the bacillus gains access to the organism—whether by direct contact, by inhalation or imbibition of the germs or by other intermediaries. Observation proves conclusively that every leper is a possible source of danger to all with whom he may come into intimate and prolonged contact.

Cold Comfort. Miss Gladys—You've no objection to my going skating in the park, but you draw the line at skating rinks. What's the difference? Prudent Mamma—Well, my dear, there's an ice distinction between the two, which is perfectly clear to me.—Chicago Tribune.

Ancient Rome is now merely a memory of the past. Ballard's Snow Liniment is the family liniment of the twentieth century. A positive cure for Rheumatism, Burns, Cuts, Sprains, Neuralgia, etc. Mr. C. H. Runyon, Stanberry, Mo., writes: "I have used Snow Liniment for Rheumatism and all pain. I can't say enough in its praise." Sold by Simmons' Pharmacy.

A CLEAN WATCH

means good time to you for years to come. True economy in a time-piece lies in cleanliness. The delicate parts doing indelible work will soon wear themselves to ruin, destroy their high finish and perfect fit when running in accumulating dirt and rancid oil. It will cost you nothing to let us examine it.
